I've been thinking about the way, when you walk down a crowded aisle, people pull in their legs to let you by.

Or how strangers will say "bless you" when someone sneezes, a leftover from the Bubonic plague; 'Don't Die', we are saying.

And sometimes, when you spill lemons from your grocery bag, someone else will help you pick them up.

Mostly, we don't want to harm each other.

We want to be handed our cup of coffee hot, and to say thank you to the person handling it.

To smile at them, and for them to smile back.

For the waitress to call us 'honey' when she sets down the bowl of clam chowder.

And for the driver of the red pick-up truck to let us pass.

We have so little of each other, now.

So far from tribe or fire.

Only these brief moments of exchange.

What if they are the true dwelling of the holy, these fleeting temples we make together when we say, 'Here, have my seat', 'Go ahead – you first', 'I like your hat.'
